About This Content

The LNER Peppercorn K1 locomotives were built between 1949 and 1950, with the intention of splitting them between the North Eastern and Eastern Regions. Many K1s would regularly be seen as far north as Edinburgh and they were frequently used on the West Highland line in the early days. Many were later allocated to the Eastern Region with a large number going to March, Cambridgeshire. K1's were used throughout the former LNER network and proved to be very versatile, working everything from local coal trains to express passenger services.

The K1's were withdrawn and scrapped by 1967: however, No. 62005 was used for a short time as an emergency boiler and consequently survived into preservation. It has become very popular on main line rail tours especially on the West Highland Line to Mallaig and has also sported the un-prototypical, but very fetching, LNER Green Lined livery as No. 2005.

This looks really cool and I cannot wait for the completed game; however how the hell do I start a mission? There are no obvious key options??? I will give a better review when there is something other than listening to the in game music to do!!

UPDATE

I now know how to move, the game uses the RIGHT mouse button to issue commands something that is alien to me as right is always used for going forward!

This game is now so much fun to play even in its infancy as it is now!. Really didn't know I would have this much enjoyment, and all for about 50¢

Escape the level by using portals to move around, activate switches, destroy obstacles and just generally feel boss.

Comes with a "deep plot" - the philosophical ramblings of the protagonist and her trusty portal-ball-dude.

Also comes with a "shallow plot" - in the guise of a meaningless, lewd gallery you can unlock (or hide if you don't want it).

Recommended for anyone who likes a decent puzzle platformer. I'm about halfway through at the time of this writing, and having fun.. Probably the best IDE I have used...very nice.. Really enjoyable game! the hookshot/grappling mechanic is really fun to use, the stage are varied, there are many clever use of your ability, especially during boss fights, the mood is colorful and lively, it sounds well, it looks well, it play well. I had a blast playing it until the very end. Highly recommended! ^^.

One of many games that seem like something I could get into if more people played it. also playing the instant matches it seems like it's hard to know whats going on. it was hard tell what was going on, i wasnt even sure that anyone else was in the match.

By the same makes of Crazy Plant Shop, Reach for the Sun is a casual game where you learn some basic science in a lighthearted way. Those who complain it is limited are missing the fact that it is just trying to hammer home the couple very basic concepts.

Saying that, the game is more clicking than learning and I think Crazy Plant Shop is a superior game in terms of letting the player have some time to absorb the knowledge (as limited as it may be). I think both games would be an interesting diversion for a child, or an adult who wants to play something casual.. good lil game. Recommend to try. If you don't like it refund. It's pretty neat having to balance pollution with trees, but very tedious afking when you finish building all you can.. because its fun to make and grow your own plant. i got this game when it first came out XD i got to scared to continue. This game was great! It's a solid adventure chapter; and while harkening to classic text-parser titles, it has a vastly improved parser and an autosave system that make it very convenient. I highly recommend you pick it up, the price being asked is not equivalent to the quality and enjoyment you'll receive playing this game. It is a gem.. Main attraction for me has to be the look of the game, its cute, and you can customise your units. There's building, exploration, resource management and some planning to do which if you want to chill can be done in a sandbox where you won't be attacked unless you want to. That's pretty much what have done with the game.

There's a nice touch where you can put your characters on Auto and let the game run itself.

The game has faults though. Although you can build walls I really couldn't work out how to link sections of wall. The resource management is painful, you progress through ages and need different resources in each, well that has a limited appeal and only really serves to make the game drag on. The Campaign game chugs on a bit and you barely need to concentrate to win, right up to a level where the game just goes demented and it really is a challenge to get through, at which I stopped playing. To get a perfect game you need to get past the very hard Campaign level and grind for some level achievements and kills. Well I'm not going to bother as it'll take too long.

Its a good game, massive amount of work has gone into it and really like the visuals and theme. I sort of like it, but the Achievements difficulty and the Campaign game can be really annoying.. Doesn't run. Not even in Windows 7, which is listed as compatible on the product page.

None of the workarounds from the forums have any effect, except the one about deleting/renaming libpandax9.dll, but then you get no video in the game and have no idea what's happening in the story.

This is probably a good game, but it's been put on Steam by a garbage publisher in a 100% defective, non-working state. So it's basically a scam. It's really sad that Steam allows people to sell non-working games on their platform :-/

Stay away and keep your money.. Allowed me to send in endless waves of soldiers as cannon fodder. Since there are no WW1 games this one is an good alternative with the right mod. 9/10 love this strategy game and the AI is not the dumbest.. Great documentary! enjoyed watching it
